

International Members

In our second issue of the Journal of Academic Ophthalmology I am pleased to announce the expansion of our editorial board to include international members. It is the hope of this Editor that ophthalmic medical education worldwide can be improved through the sharing of best practices and through collaboration and cooperation across geographic and geopolitical boundaries. Education is a safe harbor where academicians of any age, seniority, background, or national origin can meet and share experiences. I welcome additional nominations in the future.
